Campaign Junk Mail
The new Federal Election Campaign Act went into effect last week.

Nobody is sure how the complex law will work but almost everyone is agreed that the limitation on radio and TV advertising will produce mountains of junk-mail appeals. The law imposes no limit on direct-mail appeals to voters or on volunteers using their own telephones at home to harangue the multitude.

The direct-mail loophole is a curious one. At the very time in technological development when computerized and "personalized" mail - intended to appear a genuine letter from the candidate, - is the work of a machine - has reached something close to perfection, this technique is free of restraints.

Computerized letters, looking for all the world like real letters, threaten to create a pollution problem in millions of American households.

The biggest user of the system thus far has been Hubert Humphrey in Florida, where his staff programmed telephone directories and anything else they could get their hands on to fill mailboxes with "personal" pitches from Humphrey.

Actually, these things are about as personal as other junk mail, including those magazine appeals with your name in the same type in both the address and in the body of the letter.

Even the signatures look authentic, so clever are the machines in imitating handwriting, down to apparent pen scratches.

They're fakes, but ingenious ones. However, people are already catching on to the fact that it's a sophisticated machine writing them, not the candidate. The backfire has commenced, and will intensify as the candidates begin bombarding mailboxes with computerized "personal" letters.

For our part, we'd rather have the candidates on the tube, which we rarely watch, than adding to the daily stack of mail that must be sorted for authenticity and the bulk of it thrown into the trash-basket.

Incidentally, any candidate foolish enough to add to household litter in areas experiencing a garbage strike, or where pickup is infrequent, deserves just what we confidently expect he will get - a negative and hostile reaction. - Montgomery (Ala.) Advertiser

House Delays Wage Hike Until 1973

By JOHN BECKLER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has voted to increase the minimum wage to $2 next year, instead of making an immediate boost as called for by the Democratic leadership.

A conservative Republican-Southern Democratic coalition also dealt the leadership a setback by refusing to bring any new workers under the protection of the minimum-wage law. The bill, passed Thursday by a vote of 330 to 78, goes to the Senate, which is working on a bill that would raise the minimum to $2.20 this year and extend coverage to nearly six million new workers.

The House bill would increase the present $1.60 minimum to $1.80 within two months of enactment and to $2 a year later. The $1.60 rate would be retained for youths under 18 and students under 21.

Atkins to Get Loan

ATKINS, Ark. (AP) — The Farmers Home Administration has approved a $223,000 loan to the city of Atkins.

The funds, along with $70,500 in state and federal grants, are to be used to make additions and improvements in the Atkins sewer system.

Candidate Makes Charges

LITTLE ROCK — Foster Johnson of Little Rock, candidate for Democratic nomination to the U. S. Senate, charged Thursday that Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., had voted for a bill that would allow the United States to expand trade with Communist countries.

Asked which of these countries were in armed conflict with the United States, Johnson said he was referring specifically to the Soviet Union and other nations "that are helping supply arms to North Vietnam."

Mosquito Controls Hopeful

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government scientists say they have scored what could be a major breakthrough in the control of disease-bearing mosquitoes without the use of DDT or other chemical pesticides.

Agriculture Department scientists, who directed the research, say the use of tiny parasitic worms which bore holes in mosquito larvae "holds particular promise" for controlling the insects.

The tiny worms, called nematodes, are being field-tested by the U.S. Public Health Service in El Salvador and by the World Health Organization in Taiwan and Thailand.

A key to the experiment was the development of a low-cost method of mass producing a species of nematodes, Reesimermis nielsenii, which attack only mosquitoes.

The procedures are described in the May issue of "Agricultural Research," a magazine published by USDA.

At present, DDT is the cheapest and favorite pesticide for controlling mosquitoes in malaria areas of the world. Malathion, a potent but less persistent chemical, also is used.

Laboratory tests over a two-year period have shown the worms infect 13 of 19 known kinds of mosquitoes in Louisiana and have a 100 per cent kill record among insects they infect, USDA scientists say.

Although mosquitoes are the natural and only known hosts for the r. nielsenii nematode, the worms usually kill only while the mosquitoes are in the "wiggler" or larval stage of development.

The larvae develop from eggs and, if they survive, turn into adult mosquitoes which then can carry many diseases, including sleeping sickness or encephalitis as well as malaria.

ARS scientists say that mass production of the worms will enable man to spread them over large areas artificially, much the same as chemicals are applied now.

As with all control measures, however, there are drawbacks. Cold weather inactivates the nematodes and polluted or salt water kills too many nematodes for them to provide adequate control of mosquitoes, some species of which can breed in such water.

FBI May Be Hiring Women

By TOM SEPPY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two women who filed suit against the late J. Edgar Hoover believe many women will take advantage of the bureau's new policy and try to become FBI agents.

Sandra Rothenberg Nemser and Cynthia Gitt, two lawyers, say they will resubmit applications to become agents as soon as they can. "I would say hundreds, if not thousands, will do the same," said Ms. Nemser, a 29-year-old Denver poverty lawyer married to a physician. "I'm glad the FBI will now follow the federal law."

Ms. Cynthia Gitt, a 25-year-old attorney for the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, also said there would be many women applying to become FBI agents.

"After we filed our suit last summer, I received several letters from women who were denied the opportunity," she said. L. Patrick Gray III, acting FBI director, announced Friday that the FBI was changing its male-only policy and would seek female applicants for the first time in history.

Hoover vehemently opposed hiring women for the crime investigating jobs because he said the work was too dangerous.

Ms. Nemser and Gitt said they were never permitted to apply to become special agents because the FBI refused to send them application forms. In answer to their queries, they said, they received letters saying the work was too dangerous.

The American Civil Liberties Union, representing the two women, filed suit in U.S. District Court last June seeking to have Hoover's male-only policy declared unconstitutional.

Gray said in his announcement that existing requirements for the special agent position will remain unchanged, including the intensive 14-week training course.

It also contains a physical fitness program, requires the special agent applicant to become proficient in defensive tactics, and be at least 5 feet 7 inches tall.

Applicants also must be graduates of law school or accounting majors in college who have had one year of experience in their profession, although in recent years there have been exceptions.

McClellan Says Amtrak Is 'Flop'

EL DORADO, Ark. (AP) — Sen. John L. McClellan, campaigning for re-election, said here Thursday that Amtrak, the federally subsidized rail passenger system, was a "flop."

"We're throwing a lot of money away in my judgment," he said. "The government is subsidizing empty trains. We're running empty trains across the nation at the taxpayers' expense."

McClellan made the remark when asked by a newsmen about criticism of McClellan's failure to vote at Washington last month on a rider to include Arkansas in the Amtrak system. Ted Boswell, one of McClellan's opponents in the Democratic primary, said this week that McClellan should have been present to support the move by Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., to include Arkansas in the system.

Cars Built of Paper to Run on Nitrogen

---Forecast
By MIKE GOODKIND
Associated Press Writer

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Researchers say that "paper" cars powered by liquid nitrogen some day may whisker down the nation's streets, helping eliminate pollution and reducing highway deaths.

"It would sort of take care of a lot of problems," says Prof. Lindley Manning, a machine design specialist at the University of Nevada-Reno.

He predicted that within 20 years nitrogen-powered vehicles could be mass produced at prices competitive with today's gasoline-powered automobiles.

Manning said that with some 15 students and a fellow professor, Richard Schneider, he has been hammering out a prototype of the nitrogen-powered car, being built for about $1,000.

It is designed to travel about 60 miles per hour.

Schneider conceived the nitrogen engine concept about two years ago and now has several patents pending, Manning said.

The body is composed of a honeycombed weave of paper and fiberglass and is similar to the material used in the Apollo moon lander.

Manning said the body material is energy absorbing and would save lives during collisions. The material is rust resistant "and would float if that's any advantage," he added.

Exhaust emissions would consist entirely of nitrogen.

"Since the atmosphere is composed of 80 per cent nitrogen, anyway, all we're doing is borrowing the gas for a while," Manning said.

Liquid nitrogen turns to gas at temperatures about 320 degrees below zero and ordinary atmospheric temperature would be sufficient to expand the gas to run the engine, he added.

But Manning noted one hitch: Nitrogen is manufactured by burning fossil fuel.

"But it could also be made by burning garbage," he said.

"And our rough calculations show that there is sufficient garbage in this country to supply enough fuel for the nation's cars for many years to come."

Manning hopes to finish the car in time for the Urban Vehicle Design Competition at Midland, Mich., in August.

Blockade May Not Be Effective

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — After some adjustments, Russia and Red China could get enough war materiel and food into North Vietnam by rail to make up for seaborne supplies cutoff by the U.S. mining of seven North Vietnamese ports.

That is the opinion of veteran U.S. military and civilian specialists who also believe the Soviet air-transport system is inadequate to handle a massive long-range heavy-cargo airlift to North Vietnam on a sustained basis.

"The mining will not be enough to tighten the screws so much that the North Vietnamese cannot carry on their campaign in South Vietnam," one analyst said.

These specialists obviously are much less optimistic than top government officials such as Adm. Elmo Zumwalt Jr., Chief of Naval Operations, who forecast Thursday that "the input of supplies ... will be a trickle from now on."

Along with the mining of North Vietnamese ports, President Nixon has ordered that "rail and all other communications will be cut off to the maximum extent possible."

But, despite intensified U.S. bombing of North Vietnam's rail lines and yards, government analysts said the North Vietnamese showed during the 1965-68 bombing campaign that they were resourceful in getting train cargoes through, although many were destroyed.

In the more than three years that North Vietnam was free of heavy bombing, engineers and laborers greatly expanded North Vietnam's transportation system.

"Redundancy is the key," an American specialist said. "Where there used to be one bridge, there now sometimes are three. Where there used to be one road, there may be five. They use pontoon bridges and ferries."

According to American experts, the Communists take account of the loss factor when they send through supplies. Thus, officials said, if the North Vietnamese want to get two tons through, they actually move about five tons and write off the balance.

Attempt to Kill Space Shuttle Dies

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has defeated an attempt to kill the reusable space-shuttle program and has passed a $3.42 billion authorization bill for the space agency.

By a 61-to-21 vote Thursday, the Senate rejected an amendment by Sen. Walter Mondale, D-Minn., to remove $227.9 million in shuttle development money from the space-agency measure.

Then, the Senate passed by voice vote the authorization bill for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The authorization measure provides for the final lunar landing and other space projects.

Mondale contended the space shuttle project was likely to prove of little scientific merit with few of the cost-saving benefits claimed for it by NASA.

The space shuttle is to carry men and supplies between Earth and orbiting space platforms. Rather than plunge into the ocean, it would land and be used again.

Coast Areas Prepare for Storms

By HUBERT MIZELL
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Nine southeastern states in "hurricane alley" are slowly bracing their vulnerable shorelines against catastrophic storms that experts fear could kill as many as 50,000 persons.

"People won't have to get in their cars and run," said Dr. Robert Simpson, director of the National Hurricane Center, "as long as there's refuge nearby."

The President's Office of Emergency Preparedness wound up a three-day conference Thursday with plans that officials hope will soften the disaster of a coastal area being smashed by an Atlantic storm.

"We can't sit back and play the odds, knowing a bad hurricane could kill from 20,000 to 50,000 people," said George Grace of the OEP. "Of course, it sometimes takes a disaster to wake up an area to its needs."

Hurricane Camille raked the Gulf Coast in 1969, killing 320 persons in one of the United States' greatest modern disasters. Camille's deadly fury is having some positive effects three years later.

"Building codes are being installed in many areas," said Grace. "Hospitals are being better prepared to face such emergencies. We encourage builders not to install a power plant on a ground floor, which increases the chances of it going out in a hurricane."

Representatives of the governors of Florida, Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, South and North Carolina and Virginia attended the conference. Representatives of Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands also participated.

The experts tentatively identified the areas of Charleston, S.C., Miami, New Orleans and Texas coastal cities as the most vulnerable to a major hurricane disaster.

Simpson, whose office issues severe weather warnings from headquarters on the University of Miami campus, said major metropolitan areas such as New Orleans and Miami have special problems.

"Population has increased so much that evacuation cannot be the only method of escaping a storm," he said. "High-rise buildings can also be answers. We are strongly suggesting that builders construct taller buildings on supports of, say, 20 feet so they could stand like a battleship during a hurricane."

Profit Margins Scanned

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Internal Revenue Service agents will examine thousands of medium-size businesses for possible inflated profit margins, a government spokesman said today.

Donald Rumsfeld, executive director of President Nixon's Cost of Living Council, said the audits will focus on those firms that still are under price controls but which are too small to report directly to the Price Commission.

Generally, these are firms with under $50 million in yearly sales, but with more than 60 employees.

Rumsfeld said IRS now has extra manpower for the job because the administration recently lifted controls entirely from roughly 5 million firms with 60 or fewer employees.

Rumsfeld's remarks were prepared for delivery to a luncheon of the Tiger Bay Club.

Price Commission rules forbid firms that raise prices from increasing the profit part of each sales dollar above a certain level.

This rule, like other price-control regulations, is enforced directly by the Price Commission for firms that report to it, generally those with $50 million or more in yearly sales. Smaller firms are subject only to IRS spot-checks to see if they are in line.

Home Test Measures Normality Quotient

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — In times as stern as these, it is important that we keep our heads—even though many around us are losing theirs.

It becomes a personal problem to everyone—"Am I losing my mind, too?"

What about you? Are you still normal? Or are the marbles in your brain getting dispersed by circumstances over which you feel you have no real control?

Well, today we have prepared a little home test you can take and measure your own normality quotient, as compared to that of your neighbors.

Simply answer the following questions yes or no.

Rusk Elected Trustee

DAVIDSON, N.C. (AP) — Dean Rusk, the former secretary of state, has been elected one of the new at-large trustees of Davidson College.

Rusk, who is a 1931 graduate of the Presbyterian-related school, now teaches at the University of Georgia.

His seat on the 42-member board is for one year with the stipulation that he be re-elected for a full four-year term, school officials announced Wednesday.

Do you feel that most experts know what they're talking about, no matter what they are talking about?

Looking back over your own life, do you believe that you have ever really intelligently solved any major problem in it, including puberty?

But you are certain, aren't you, that at least you have retained the simple good sense you were born with?

One of the big reasons that poor people stay poor is because they have more character than rich people. Right?

You have stayed younger looking than three out of five of the other surviving members of your graduating class, haven't you?

As a man of liberal views, you'd like for your own wife to take a more active role in the women's liberation movement, wouldn't you?

If you had the chance to start life all over again right now, you'd jump at the chance, wouldn't you?

A majority of the people in your office who got promoted ahead of you did so because they had all the luck or spent more time currying favor with the boss, didn't they?

It would please you more if your son won a scholastic scholarship to Harvard than a football scholarship to the University of Alabama, wouldn't it?

Any man in his right mind would rather run a small business of his own than become a well-paid cog in a big organization, wouldn't he?

Don't you secretly think your face shows more character than it did 20 years ago?

It is all right with you, isn't it, if your daughter decides she prefers a business or professional career to marriage?

Your neighbor must fudge on his income tax more than you do or he wouldn't have so much money to spend on himself. Isn't that so?

Those are the questions. Now to your score. No single question is decisive. But if you answered yes to most of the questions, you are a normally abnormal liar.

If you answered no to most of them, keep it to yourself. An abnormally honest man is a misfit in any civilization.

AMERICAN STYLE

Americans have many things to be thankful for. One in particular was a "new idea" created over 50 years ago . . . the mass-produced automobile.

A Detroit machinist named Henry Ford, had produced his first combustion engine in 1893; his first car in 1896, and by 1903 had his own company. Most car manufacturers were building automobiles mostly for the rich. But by 1914, Henry Ford had in his mind to make automobiles that "all" Americans could afford.

He shared profits with his workers, raised their wages to an unheard of price for those days, introduced the fast, efficient production line . . . and thus with his famous "Model T" created an "American Revolution" that ultimately was copied by all manufacturers and helped make this nation the most productive in the world.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Readers Request Some Definitions

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—We read your column every day. My husband has had his fifth light stroke, but, since we live in a small town, we can't find out from the library and our doctor doesn't tell us the meanings of some terms we need to know. Would you please tell me what is meant by syncope, erysipelas, adrenalin injection and auricular fibrillation?

Dear Reader—Syncope is merely a medical term for fainting and, of course, it can be caused by a wide variety of things, such as bad news, standing at attention in parade formation, a needle puncture for drawing blood, or it can be associated with a stroke.

Erysipelas refers to a bacterial infection of the skin and it usually requires immediate treatment. It is caused by the streptococcus, which is a variety of the same germ that can cause strep throat.

Regarding adrenalin injection, adrenalin is the chemical substance elaborated by the center of the small adrenal gland that rests over the kidney. Adrenalin is a vital substance to the body and mobilizes the body for "fight or flight" in response to stress. It has a powerful action on the heart and circulation and is injected as a medicine for this purpose under certain conditions.

atrial fibrillation refers to an irregularity of the top part of the heart. The two top chambers of the heart are the atria. Sometimes they beat very rapidly or twitch or fibrillate. The rate may be around 500 beats per minute. When they do this, these two top chambers don't contract normally. Even so, the heart function may be adequate in healthy people because the major pumping action of the heart to the arteries is accomplished by the two bottom chambers (the ventricles). How well the heart functions in the presence of atrial fibrillation depends on how rapidly the ventricles, or lower chambers, beat.

Atrial fibrillation has been observed in relatively healthy individuals who don't have any significant evidence of heart disease and one can even have the condition while engaged in fairly vigorous physical activity. It can also occur as a complication of food poisoning, indigestion or anything which disturbs the body chemistry. It may occur as a single episode with acute illness and it can be precipitated by drinking too much alcohol. It also occurs in heart disease including atherosclerosis and rheumatic heart disease.

Helen and Sue Bottel The Generation Gap

This Plot Never Stops Boiling

DEAR RAP:

May I add one more letter to the many inspired by "Longing Adoptive Parent"?

Our son will soon be three years old and he would never have been ours except that one teenage girl thought of her child first. He is a fine, healthy, happy toddler and has brought untold joy to us and his grandparents. When he is older he will be told about the selfishness of his other mother and her great concern for his future. I know she often thinks of him and she will for the rest of her life. But I hope she also thinks of the happiness she gave our family. I thank her every day as I see our son's straight back, curly hair and bright eyes—and each year, as he has another birthday. Without this girl, our lives would be terribly empty.

Please, girls, before you consider abortion, think of us, the adoptive parents. We need you so much. Your life isn't ending because you are pregnant. It is only the beginning for so many others!—AN ADOPTIVE MOTHER

DEAR READERS:
"Longing Adoptive Parent" introduced a plot that never stops boiling. Here are two perceptive letters which give the other side of the picture.—H and S.

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

I read between the lines of "Longing Adoptive Parent's" letter that she wanted to adopt a child for many of the wrong reasons. Does she want a beautiful, perfect, blue-eyed baby to prove her status or to show off as a prize?

I lived with a woman like this. When I was very young, my life with my adoptive parents was fine. Things started going wrong when I reached my teens. I had to go on "chaperoned" dates. My "parents" chose my friends. When I was allowed out without a "keeper," my date was given a route to follow to and from, and I was followed to see that he took it.

I was manipulated, made to "social climb," suffocated, criticized, screamed at if I fell short of being perfect. They gave me everything—except freedom to grow up. They tried to buy my love with clothes and cars and later said I "owed" them.

At age 18 I felt grateful for the material things, but I did not love them. I found out who my "real mother" was and left to be with her.

All I can say to "Longing" is that I would have starved and gladly taken the brunt of not having a father, to have stayed with my REAL mother, who is all my other parents never could be. (And I pity them!)

out?—ONE WHO HAS BEEN THERE.
DEAR HELEN AND SUE:
This is the mother of "OWH-RT."

As an unmarried mother at age 17, I gave my baby up for adoption. I knew where my child was and the parents kept in touch with pictures and occasional letters at first. I thought my child was happy and so, when the man I married urged me to try and get her back, I said "No." I'd made the bargain, though I bitterly regretted it.

Shortly before my child became of age, she contacted me, and my good husband and I began to find out how miserable her life had been. She asked if she could come and live with us. What arrived at our home was an underdeveloped, insecure child, instead of the beautiful, self-assured young lady she should have been.

We are now trying to undo all the damage of the past years, when my child was nothing but a status symbol for two neurotic people who should never have been allowed the privilege of adopting a child.

We realize we cannot completely erase all the insecurities and years of constant abuse, belittling and suppression of mental growth, but we are making progress in preparing a talented, lovely young lady to live life as the great thing it is, and to seek out through education her place in society.

With the help of God, this can be done.—ONE WHO REGRETS NOT (GOT A PROBLEM? OR A subject for discussion, the generation style? Direct your questions to either Helen or Sue Bottel—or both, in care of this newspaper, if you want a combination mother-daughter answer.)

BIBLES FOR RUSSIA TULSA OKLA (AP) — If anyone is planning a trip to the Soviet Union, an agency here called Russian Bible will send him free — on request — a Russian translation of the Bible to take with him, and give to someone there.

The agency made that offer in noting that the Soviet Council of Religious Affairs has stated that each tourist is allowed to bring one Bible into the country, where there is a shortage of Bibles.

Get Your Mower in Shape

By MR. FIX

Don't wait until your lawn needs mowing to roll the mower out of the garage and see if it is in shape to use. Any lawn mower, power or hand, needs a spring check-up. Doing it ahead of time will mean it is ready to use when you need it. It also is likelier to get through the summer without breaking down.

Most people do not store their mowers properly in the fall. If you are like nearly everyone else your mower probably has a coating of dust and dirt and maybe even a little rust.

Clean it thoroughly. Scrape away accumulated grass clippings. If there is any fuel in the tank from last year, drain it. Don't take any chances with it. Replace with fresh fuel.

Power mowers have an air cleaner that should be cleaned regularly. Start the summer with a clean filter. Clean it out by rinsing it in kerosene or gasoline. Work in a well ventilated area and in a spot where there is no flame or chance of sparks.

Some mowers use an oil bath filter. Drain out the old oil and replace with fresh oil after first rinsing the parts. The filter element is generally soaked in clean oil and drained.

If there is any doubt, check manufacturers' instructions.

Don't spoil that fresh spring growth by chewing it up with a dull blade, or cropping it too close with a blade that is not adjusted.

Adjust for proper height and then make sure the blade is sharp. A rotary blade can be touched up with a file. If it goes dull quickly again, then it needs grinding. Since rotary blades are inexpensive, keep a spare on hand so that you always have a sharp blade to use.

Reel type mowers get out of adjustment rather easily. Hold a sheet of newspaper between the reel and the knife blade. Turn the reel by hand. It should cut the paper along the full length of the knife.

Adjust the knife if it doesn't. There are adjusting nuts or screws to do this.

If your reel mower seems dull it may only need adjusting. If proper adjusting doesn't help then get the blades sharpened professionally.

Oil and grease your mower before using it. Go over all the oiling points. Use grease on the axle. Coat wheel gears with grease. Bearings should be oiled. Grease and oil from last year that has picked up dirt should be cleaned with a solvent. Lubricate these points over again.

Tighten all nuts and bolts. A loose bolt will shake right off from the vibrations once you start mowing.

	EXPAND FACILITIES
	SAN MARCOS, Tex. (AP) — An increase in the number of students participating in Baptist student center activities at Southwest Texas State University has resulted in plans to expand facilities during the summer.
	The Rev. D. Glen Norris, director of the Baptist Student Union, said attendance at Tuesday and Thursday evening vesper services warranted the planned expansion.
	The proposed addition will cost $60,000, with the BSU raising half and the Texas Baptist general convention providing matching funds.
	HIGH ILLEGITIMACY
	WELLINGTON (AP) — Every eighth New Zealand baby is illegitimate and one in five is conceived out of wedlock, according to latest Health Department statistics.
	The illegitimacy rate, now one of the highest in the world, has risen from 8.05 per cent of live births in 1962 to 13.34 per cent in 1970 — and is still rising.
	Almost 38 per cent of unwed mothers are teenagers. Seventy-five per cent of married teenagers conceived their first baby before they wed.
	COSTLY DAMAGE
	HOUSTON (AP) — Losses from vandalism and burglaries at Houston schools continue to increase and are approaching $500,000 a year.
	School district officials have proposed night patrols and a central alarm and communications network.

Ray Murphy Shows Will Power and Faith

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Ray Murphy can't forget April 11, 1970.

The former Oklahoma State wrestling star, then a graduate student, was competing in an independent wrestling tournament.

"I got picked up and put down on the side of my head," Murphy recalls.

He has spent the last two years in bed—paralyzed from the neck down—because of the accident.

"I was never unconscious. After they got me to the hospital, they doped me up pretty good, but I remember pretty much what went on."

Murphy fought hard to get onto the wrestling team at OSU and wound up his collegiate career with a second-place finish in the 145-pound weight division of the NCAA Tournament in 1969.

But he's battling a bigger fight now.

"A lot of things that didn't seem important before do now," he says.

Like walking.

"Anything," he said with a smile. "Just breathing."

He can breathe by himself for only two hours at a time. The rest of his time is spent with a respirator machine.

But even that's progress.

"That started from nothing," Ray Murphy Sr., his father, noted.

"They said the longest anyone had lived with the breathing machine was 12 months. Then they started talking about 18 months, then 24 months.

"He has broken all the known records for breathing. So maybe he'll break the others."

Many who never heard of Ray before have joined his fight.

Somewhere in the neighborhood of $50,000 has been raised to defray Ray's medical expenses—thought to be around $100,000 so far.

"We don't know how much money has been raised. We have no personal involvement in that," his father says.

"I do know that hundreds, maybe thousands of people have donated. The situation is probably not unheard of, but it's probably unequalled."

"I do think it's unusual to keep this much interest going for more than two years."

"But Ray has so much will-power and faith, it has flowed over and touched a lot of people."

"He still has it."

Hoover Signs With Baylor

WACO, Tex. (AP) — John Hoover, a 440 runner from Canyon High School, has signed a track letter of intent with Baylor University.

Hoover was injured the past season and did not compete in the state meet. He placed third in the 440 with a 48.4 clocking in 1971.

Opening lead ♦ 6

By Oswald & James Jacoby

In one of the early rounds of the Vanderbilt, both teams reached four spades after identical bidding. Both Wests opened the six of diamonds and both declarers tried to cash three rounds of diamonds only to have East ruff the third lead.

One declarer discarded the seven of hearts and could not make his contract after East led a trump and West cashed the ace and led a second one.

Jack Blair of Tulsa, whose team went on to get to the finals, recovered by overruffing, leading the seven of hearts and letting it ride to East's queen.

East led a trump and West played ace and another, but Jack won in dummy and led the jack of hearts. East ducked and Jack discarded. West took his king and led a fourth diamond.

Jack ruffed in dummy and led the 10 of hearts. East held back his ace, but it did him no good since Jack discarded another club and continued hearts to wind up making his contract and gaining a valuable 13 IMPs.

The hand is interesting indeed as the best line of play would have been to win the first diamond and lead a heart at trick two, but the actual play of three rounds of diamonds would have been better had diamonds run three times.

When they failed to break nicely, Jack found a most ingenious way to recover.

CARD Sense

The bidding has been:

West North East South

1 ♠ 2 ♣ 1 ♠ Pass

You, South, hold:

♠ KJ51 ♥ K876 ♦ 32 ♣ Q107

What do you do now?

A—Bid one heart. If you respond one spade, you may lose the heart suit. This way, your partner can bid one spade if he holds four of them.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Sure enough, your partner does bid one spade. What do you do now?

McLain Having It Rough

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Baltimore Orioles and Oakland pitcher Denny McLain have a hitting problem. The problem is that the Orioles aren't hitting anybody and everybody's hitting Denny.

The Orioles did manage six hits Friday night, which matched the total of their two previous games, but bowed to the Chicago White Sox and Wilbur Wood, 4-3.

The A's got McLain off the hook after the former superstar was rapped for four runs in the second inning by Boston, including home runs on Rick Miller and Tommy Harper, but lost 7-6 on Harper's second home run of the game in the 12th inning.

Elsewhere in the American League, Minnesota and Milwaukee battled 21 innings—one short of the longest night game in AL history—before play was suspended with a 3-3 tie to be resumed before today's regularly scheduled game. Texas downed Cleveland 3-1, the New York Yankees whipped California 6-3 and Detroit and Kansas City were rained out.

The White Sox jumped to a 4-0 lead against Mike Cuellar on a solo homer by Bill Melton—first of the season for the 1971 home run champ—a two-run blast by Dick Allen and Pat Kelly's run-scoring single.

The Orioles, held to two hits for seven innings, scored in the eighth on Andy Etchebarren's double and Bobby Grich's single and got two in the ninth on a walk, two singles and an error before reliever Steve Kealey retired Terry Crowley and Merv Rettenmund with two runners aboard.

Despite throwing more between assignments than at almost any time in his career, McLain was clobbered by Boston. He has surrendered 32 hits in 221-3 innings and has a 6.09 earned run average.

The A's tied the score with four runs in the fourth inning, three on Dave Duncan's homer and went ahead 6-5 in the seventh, only to have the Red Sox catch up in the ninth on Ben Oglivie's pinch single.

Little did pinch hitter Tommy Reynolds of the Brewers know when he stroked a two-run game-tying single in the seventh inning that he would start a long night's journey into day.

Neither team could manage another run before curfew rang after the 21st inning.

The longest night game in major league history went 24 innings in 1968 with Houston beating the New York Mets 1-0.

Giants Do Not Use Willie

By BURCE LOWITT

Associated Press Sports Writer

"We want Willie! We want Willie! We want Willie!" the fans chanted. And out of the New York Mets' dugout came—John Milner.

Willie Mays was making his debut Friday night in a New York uniform. But No. 24 never got the chance to show his stuff against his former team, the San Francisco Giants, much to the dismay of the 44,271 fans who jammed Shea Stadium hoping to get a glimpse of their newest hero.

It would have been perfect for baseball's top right-handed home run hitter to step up to the plate and crash his 647th over the wall.

The only problem, though, was that when a pinch-hitter was needed, a right-handed pitcher was on the mound for the Giants.

And so, with one one in the eighth inning, the Mets trailing 1-0 and the fans hollering for Willie, Mets' Manager Yogi Berra stayed with the percentages and sent up Milner, a rookie and, more important, a southpaw swinger.

"Boooooo!" the fans responded.

But the jeers turned to cheers as Milner worked Steve Stone for a walk and later came home with the tying run on Ken Boswell's double that knocked out the San Francisco starter.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Burpee's seed catalogue was a hot seller in the spring of 1913 and you could buy a Jackson touring automobile ("no hill too steep, no sand too deep"), complete with nickel trimming and, get this!, a self-starter, for $1,500.

Woodrow Wilson had just moved bag and baggage into the White House and the Prohibition Party was bubbling with enthusiasm.

It was nearly 60 years ago, a whole different era. Or was it?

The big baseball news was that Ty Cobb was a holdout. The circumstances engulfing his salary battle with Detroit Tiger owner Frank Navin had an uncommon likeness to the spring's dispute between Vida Blue and Oakland A's owner Charlie O. Finley.

Because of his great season in 1912, when he compiled a .410 batting average, Cobb plumped for a hardy raise, from $9,000 a year to $15,000. Blue, after a sensational pitching season in 1971, wanted a chunky salary hike. He had been making $25 less than Cobb's dream salary, and wanted $92,500.

Finley balked. "Blue will play for what I want to pay him or he won't play professional baseball," said Finley.

Navin balked. "You will play for Detroit or you won't play for anybody and you will take what I offer," said Navin, as quoted in Harold Seymour's history, "Baseball: The Golden Age."

Cobb had no place else to play, what with the restrictive reserve clause binding him for eternity to the Tigers.

Same with Blue. But Blue thought he'd use the Japanese baseball league as leverage, until he discovered that there was in fact an international cartel. And Japan had an unwritten agreement with organized baseball in the United States not to raid or entice American players to the land of cherry blossoms.

Sen. Hoke Smith of Georgia, Cobb's home state,

Baseball Tips

Pitching

Young pitchers should throw only a fastball; their muscles aren't sufficiently developed to handle a curve ball. Grip the ball across the seams where the seams are the widest.

Use a half windup; a full windup wastes motion and energy and doesn't help the speed of the ball. Pitch with the whole body, not just the arm.

Come out the rubber as hard as you can. Keep your eyes on the catcher's glove at all times. Work on control. Good control is the key to being a good pitcher.

Concentrate on every pitch. And immediately after delivery, get ready to be the fifth fielder.

Ty Cobb and Vida Blue: A Tale of Two Holdouts

Ty Cobb

asked Cobb for a copy of his contract, and said he would look into anti-trust possibilities.

Blue didn't have to go that far. Curt Flood had preceded him in that area.

Cobb was suspended by Navin for a month.

Finley placed Blue on the "restricted list," which meant that Blue could not play for the A's for a month, roughly equivalent to a suspension.

Navin claimed that Cobb's salary demands would "bankrupt me." However, he had added two thousand seats in the past year, to create a seating capacity of 13,000 in Navin Stadium. And he was planning to construct another 10,000 seats. Business couldn't have been all that bad.

Finley was cashing in mightily on Blue, who had become one of baseball's best drawing cards. Ten thousand more people came out to see Oakland play with Blue pitching than when he wasn't on the mound.

Navin also said that "discipline, not only money, was an important factor." He conceded that Cobb was probably the best player in the world then, but Cobb had tried to defy him in the past, too, and did unseemly things like quitting for a week when he didn't like a room on the road.

Finley also said that he would not be defied by Blue, although he admitted that Blue was probably the best pitcher in the game. Both parties refused to budge for some time. Vida Blue said "prestige, not money," was a major issue. Finley, it was understood, took discipline, not money, as a major issue.

Prestige was a factor for Cobb, too. "Navin does not own me body and soul," said Cobb.

Fans wanted Blue so badly that some rich ones, representing about 40 Oakland area companies, offered to make up the pay difference for Blue.

Both came close to signing before they actually signed. Blue, pen in hand, walked out on Finley when he felt the owner would make him look bad in public with a particular contract.

Cobb was about to sign with Navin when he saw that the Tiger owner had lowered a pre-arranged figure on the contract.

After a month into the season, both Cobb and Blue compromised. Cobb got $11,332.55. Blue signed for $63,000.

Before this, Blue threatened to leave baseball, and took an executive job for three weeks with a bathroom fixtures firm. Cobb, according to history, made no such threats. (However, teammate Sam Crawford, also an early holdout that spring, threatened to become a slot-machine salesman.)

The Tigers, sixth in 1912, finished sixth again in 1913. Cobb led the American League in hitting again, but dropped to a dismal .390.

In 1971, the A's won the American League West Division championship and Blue won 24 games.

Stay tuned, history fans.

Finds Changing Attitudes at Cal

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

BERKELEY, Calif. — (NEA)—He has just come back at 7 o'clock this morning from Fresno after a long spring practice session on the soggy turf of California Memorial Stadium yesterday afternoon. Now he's back in the shadows of the Berkeley hills this afternoon for more intensive drilling of the 86 player in motley football uniforms.

Because these are the busy days for Mike White, a new head coach in college football. Recruiting (as he was doing in Fresno). Organizing. Instructing. And at the same time learning.

Mike White, at 36, looks like he should be the freshman coach. Firm-jawed, snub-nosed, clear-eyed, and as trim as he was when he played varsity football at this same school 15 years ago. He is now the head football coach at the University of California, whose tradition in the sport goes all the way back to 1886.

"I really think," he says, "that California is ripe for football success."

It has been different at California, which has had the Wonder Teams and the Thunder Teams, since 1964, when the Free Speech Movement was born at Berkeley and signaled the era of dissent in today's universities. California hasn't been to the Rose Bowl since 1959.

"The old attitudes," continues Mike earnestly, "are gone. I think the students of today really want to identify with success. I have seen what football success did at Stanford."

Mike was the chief assistant these last eight years to John Ralston at Stanford, down the road on the other side of San Francisco Bay, and when Ralston resigned to go to the pros, Mike could have stepped up to the top job. He opted for Cal instead.

"It shows you how important success is," he says

"I came to California because I had a loyalty here, where I went to school. As for Stanford, it's a tough assignment to follow a winner. It's tough to inherit a job. You have to change yourself to deal with the same people you've been associating with as a buddy."

"Here I can be my own man."

Which means it's strictly his own show. For spring practice, which is his showcase to indoctrinate the players with his football philosophy, Mike brought back Joe Kapp, the unemployed quarterback with whom he played at California. Joe brings a verve to the practice field.

"Run it out," he yells to holdover quarterback Jay Cruze in a backfield signal drill, after a handoff has been muffed and the college kid pulled up. "The play doesn't end there!"

Handling almost 100 players is a meshed process, with a covey of assistants to work with individual groups in different sectors of the field. It's as sophisticated as an assembly line. Mike is the straw boss, who in sweat togs with no identifying badge, wanders from bunch to bunch to check on the progress of the kids, to get a line on their agility and acuity.

"Here," he muses, "you're dealing with smarter kids. I wanted to coach at an academically oriented school. Last year I know that Berkeley recruited seven or eight guys away from Stanford. You can still involve the student body (California has some 28,000 scholars) in your program. You don't have to put the football player aside as an animal."

This time of year, spring practice also attracts the pro scouts scouring the country to acquire a line on next fall's seniors. "This is not a big league squad," whispers Ken Meyers of the New York Jets, who has recently visited such body parts as Nebraska and Oklahoma.
